Adorn the Church but Do Not Neglect the Poor

Do you wish to honor the body of Christ? Do not neglect him when he is naked. Do not honor him here inside with silken robes but neglect him outside as he is perishing of cold and nakedness.

The one who said, "This is my body," and established the fact by his word, is also the one who said, "You saw me hungry and did not give me to eat," and "As much as you did not do for one of these least ones, you did not do to me." The body of Christ in the Eucharist has no need of garments but of a pure soul; the body of Christ outside needs much care.

Let us learn how to become wise and to honor Christ as he wishes. Thus, render him the very honor which he himself prescribed by spending your wealth on the poor. God has no need of golden vessels but of golden souls.

Now in saying this, I am not hindering you from making such votive offerings as these. I am insisting that, along with these and before these, you give alms. He accepts the former but is much more pleased with the latter. Do not decorate this house and neglect your suffering brother. He is more truly a temple than this building.

10 Points

..... of the

Good Christian:

- 1 Bite your tongue. Always say less than you in fact think. Speak in a quiet but convincing voice. It not only depends on what you say, but also how you say it.
- 2 Promise infrequently, but keep your promises faithfully, no matter what it costs you.
- 3 Don't miss the opportunity to tell someone something kind and encouraging.
- 4 Take an interest in others, their lives, work, home and family. Rejoice with those who rejoice, weep with those who weep. Let everyone whom you meet, though they may be humble, feel that you consider them an important person.
- 5 Always be happy, cheerful. Do not burden or taint your surroundings with small everyday pain, difficulties, failures, suffering and disappointments. Remember: everyone carries with them a certain burden.
- 6 Be unbiased. Discuss but do not discourage. It is a sign of generosity if you disagree without being annoying.
- 7 Refuse to talk about the other person's mistakes. Let your virtues, if you have them, speak for themselves. Do not support gossip. It is a waste of precious time and it can be extremely malignant.
- 8 Respect the feelings of others. Joking and joking on someone else's account are rarely appropriate and they can hurt someone when we least expect it.
- 9 Ignore annoying remarks about you and anything that people say about you. Remember that if the person speaking about you is not speaking the truth then it does not accurately reflect you, so don't let it worry you.
- 10 Don't be too anxious and frightened about your reputation. Act as you know best and be patient. Forget about yourself and don't worry, if you do good things then people will notice.

Christ The King Sunday next weekend
